Staying Connected while Physically Distant

Fire

Set our hearts on fire
with love, so that earth and air and sea – and all of your creation will sing your praises now
and forever more.

Let your words only be on our lips so that all who hear will burn
with love for you.

Let this conflagration
of humankind light up the universe with the fire of your love!

Flower Power

Mariana Rollgejser delivered flowers from Lorraine Kwong's garden to Margaret Ohlin

Today's Gospel John 12: 44-50

Spirit who is breath and life,
You are our weather.
Blow through us, release the clench in our throats,
unwind the press of our ribs.
You know our whispered secrets and our strong fluencies.
Breathe through our tides of sorrow and gales of laughter.
When we are struck dumb and our breath is lost to us return Great Spirit, small dove at the horizon.

Prayers in a time of Virus, by Julie Perrin

In a high spiritual season, we are more drawn to prayer. But we must learn to be very careful, for prayer can be an easy substitute for real spirituality. It would be impossible to have spirituality without prayer, of course, but it is certainly possible to pray without having a spirituality at all. How do you know? "Am I becoming kinder?" is a good place to start.
